

Bencroft Wood

Distance: 2½ km=1½ miles

easy walking

Region: Hertfordshire

Date written: 26-jun-2017

Author: Phegophilos

Last update: 18-may-2020

Refreshments: Brickendon after the walk

Map: Explorer 174 (Epping Forest) but the map in this guide should suffice

Problems, changes? We depend on your feedback: feedback@fancyfreewalks.org

Public rights are restricted to printing, copying or distributing this document exactly as seen here, complete and without any cutting or editing. See Principles on main webpage.

Woodland trails, secret paths

In Brief

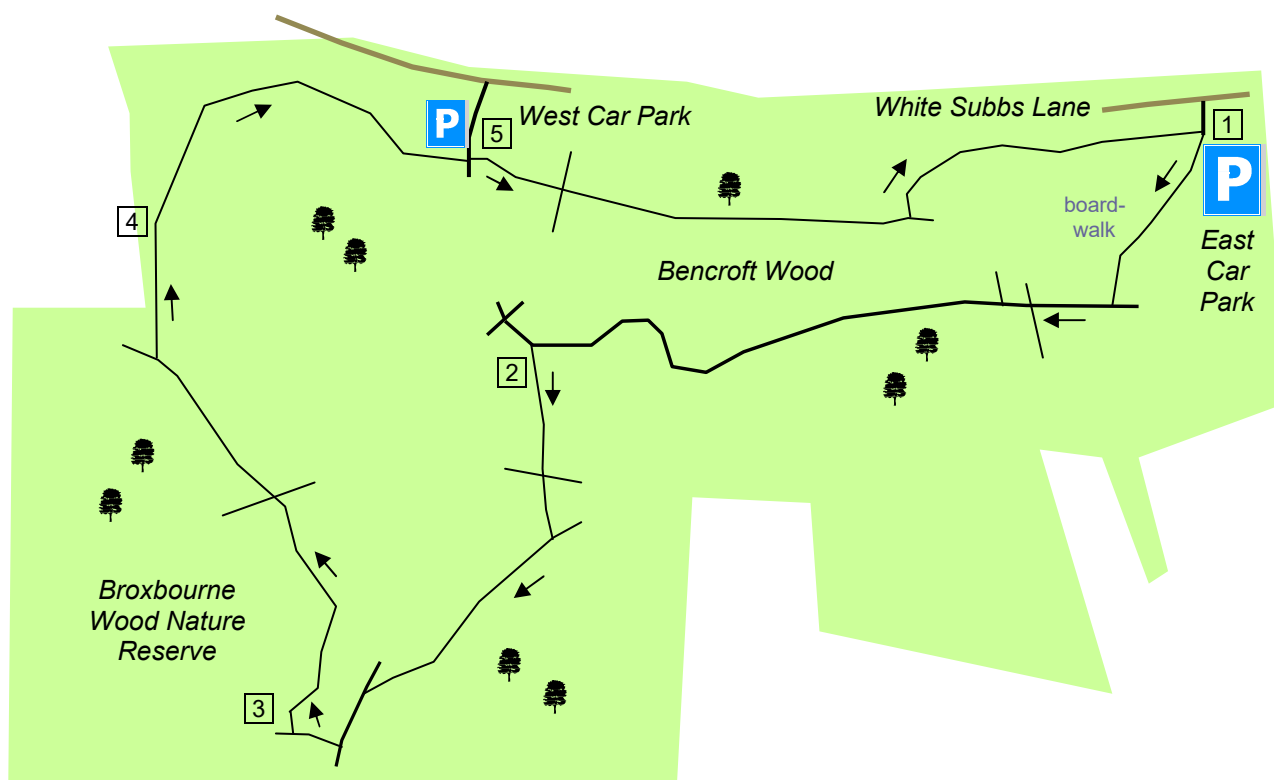

Bencroft Wood is a big family attraction because of its well-made paths and boardwalks through wonderful woods which form part of the wider Broxbourne Woods Nature Reserve. The route given here is only a suggestion, designed to tempt you further into the wider woods beyond where there are more nature trails.

All the paths on this walk are clear, although one or two are little used, so there are no nettles and very little undergrowth to worry you. Any sensible walking shoes should be fine. This walk is perfect for your dog too.

The walk begins at the Bencroft Wood East car park off White Stubbs Lane, near Brickendon, Herts. The nearest postcode is EN10 7QP. If you are coming from the east (e.g. from Hoddesdon), the car park is on the left, about 300 yds after a junction on the left (West End Road). If coming from the west (e.g. from Epping Green), the car park is on the right, about 300 yds after a junction on the left (Pembroke Lane). Don't confuse this car park with the Bencroft Wood West car park. (You can also start there, as it's on the route, but the quieter east car park is much better for this walk because of the exhilarating start.) For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 Starting at the Bencroft Wood East car park, go to the notice board at the back and turn right past one of the “fat waymarkers” which you will see in several places along this walk. Your path goes down through bracken into woodland. Very shortly, you meet a really superb feature of this nature reserve: a descending boardwalk. At the end of the boardwalk, turn right at a T-junction on a wide shingly path beside another “fat waymarker”. Follow this excellent wide path for 250m, ignoring all paths leading off, till you pass a bench seat. Your path now curves right and left as it descends and ascends. As the path bends right again, look to your left for a permissive path, provided by the Woodland Trust. (As a guide, this is 10m before a major crossing of paths and another “fat waymarker”.) Turn left on this narrow path, down into attractive woodland.
- 2 In 100m, you arrive at a crossing path by a marker post with a black arrow [May 2020: lying broken on the ground]. Go straight over, still on a narrow path. In only 50m more, you meet another narrow crossing path. Turn right here. In 150m, you arrive at a junction with a very wide raised path which has a ditch on each side. This ancient trackway forms part of the Hertfordshire Way, a 312 km=194 mile circular walk. Go up a few steps to meet the trackway and turn left on it. You quickly descend to cross a stream bed (possibly dry in summer) by a long bridge.
- 3 Turn immediately right and right again to cross another long bridge, almost reversing your direction. Now keep on dead straight on a narrow woodland path. (You may need to look out for bikers who speed along all the paths in this area.) Down on your right is the gully of the stream you just crossed. In 100m or so, your path goes straight over a wide forestry track. The path goes up through bracken and you can see a green meadow ahead. Just before you reach the meadow, fork right. This new path takes you over a ditch to run beside the meadow on your left.

- 4 After only 50m, your path suddenly veers right away from the meadow. It comes down to the stream gully. Cross the gully using a mud bridge and immediately veer right over another mud bridge. Your path now winds its way through woodland and curves right. You are walking parallel to the road, which is only 50m on your left, and you may hear traffic, giving you an audible cue as you head for the West Car Park. A rather bumpy up-and-down trail of about 150m finally takes you to the western car park.
- 5 Go straight across the car park to find a narrow hidden path on the other side. (This path is difficult to see at first and it may be hidden behind a parked car. As a guide, it is exactly 10m to the left of a “fat marker post”.) The path runs through tall rush grass and you may have doubts about this path until, after just 20m, you pass a marker post with a yellow arrow. You now meet a boardwalk which takes you to a crosspaths by a post with red/mauve bands. Go straight over. The path goes over a plank bridge and rises, passing another banded post. After a bank, the path winds through bracken and arrives at a “fat marker post” and a white-topped post with a deep hollow ahead. Turn left and almost immediately fork right to a bench seat. Veer right past another red/mauve post. Continue on this path, soon crossing a 4-plank bridge, with the road still audible on your left. Another 4-plank bridge finally leads to the Eastern Car Park where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: White Stubbs Lane is easily accessible from the A10 trunk road and hence from the M25. One way is to leave the A10 eastwards at the exit for Broxbourne into Turnford. In just over 1 mile, at a roundabout, turn left on Bell Lane, marked Broxbourne Woods and (in brown) Paradise Wildlife Park. The road goes over the A10 and into woods. Follow the road for another 1¾ miles to the car park, as described on the header page.

fancy more free walks? www.fancyfreewalks.org