Woodland, meadows, views, wooded hills

In Brief

This is a heavenly woodland walk under the wooded hills (or “hangers”) of this secluded part of East Hampshire. It begins in Hawkley village, calling in at the charming Hawkley Inn near the end. (For reservations, ring 01730 827205.) In between you will see only a few green meadows and woods where in late spring ramsons (wild garlic) grow in profusion, wafting their scent. The only other people you meet are likely to be walking part of the Hangers Way, a long-distance footpath.

There are some nettles and brambles on this walk in summer. Boots and poles are always advisable, especially in the wetter seasons, because of muddy patches. Most of the walk was firm underfoot at the time of writing, but in a rainy spell there are some squidgy sections. Your small-to-medium dog can come on this walk because almost all the stiles have a gap or a dog gate.

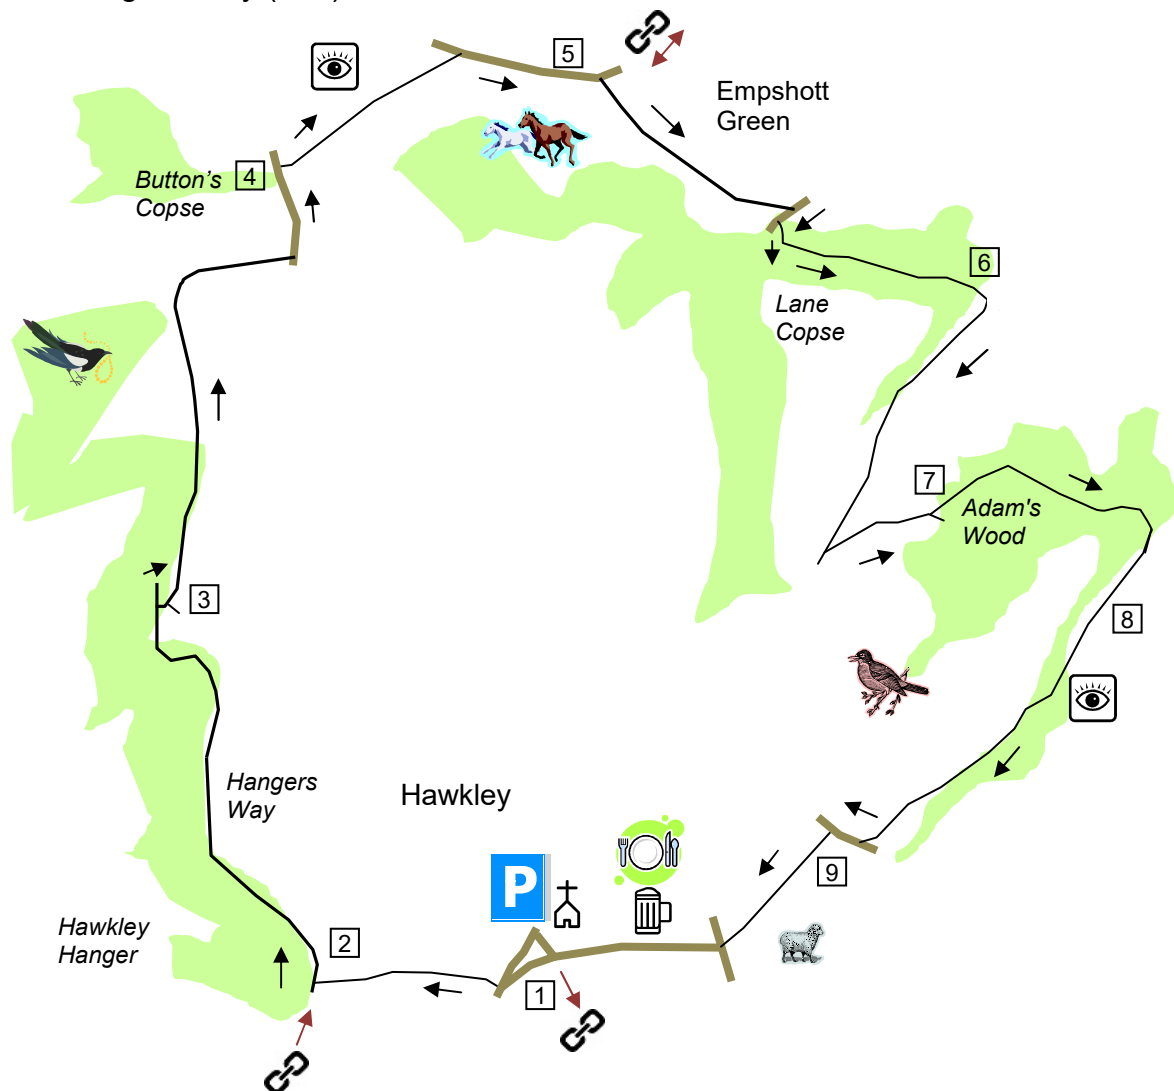

This route can be walked as a central link of the Hampshire Hangers Chain, giving you a long walk through Steep or Froxfield or Selborne.

The walk begins in the village of Hawkley, Hampshire, postcode GU33 6NF, grid ref 745292, www.w3w.co/twinkled.conveying.snail. Park by the Upper Green near the church or, if spaces are in short supply, try a little further along the road. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

You won't find Hawkley in the Norman Domesday Book because it was part of the parish of Newton Valence (see the “Selborne” walk in this series). Two things dominate this quiet village: Hawkley Hanger and the other hills that draw ramblers to the village. William Cobbett (of “Rural Rides”) wrote around 1830 “Never in all my life was I so surprised and so delighted. I pulled up my horse and sat and looked, and it was like looking from the top of a castle down into the sea, except that the valley was land and not water.” Gilbert White of Selborne surveyed Hawkley Hanger as part of his “Natural History”. The other point of focus is the Church of St. Peter & St. Paul, designed in Rhenish style in about 1865 by Samuel Sanders Teulon.

- 1 Walking beside the green away from the church, follow the main road, signposted Oakshott, Priors Dean, Wheatham. Only 50m after the green, turn right on a concrete drive signposted as the Hangers Way and a bridleway. The drive runs behind gardens and becomes a path along the right-hand side of a field with Hawkley Hanger visible ahead. Your path enters woodland and reaches a 3-way fingerpost. Turn right, still following the Hangers Way (HW).

The Link from the High Hampshire Hangers walk joins here.

- 2 You are on a wide woodland path [Jan 2023: 2 fallen trees: take care!] beneath the high hanger and soon the village of Hawkley can be seen again through a gap in the trees on your right. You may encounter people out shooting in season, here or later in the walk, so make your presence known: it's only polite! After taking you under yews, maples and pines, your path gradually descends and then rises again with a steep drop on your right, veering left, then right again. After nearly 1 km in the wood, you come to a marker post and a junction of paths on your right. Turn right here, still on the HW.
- 3 Your path immediately bends left parallel to your original direction. Here, ignore a signposted footpath on your right and stay on the path just inside the wood, now under some tall beeches. The path leaves the woods, runs beside a meadow and reaches a wooded stream valley. At a 3-way fingerpost, keep straight ahead. Your path takes you down steps (careful!), over a bridge and up again, then through a wooden gate and along the left-hand side of a meadow. In the far corner, at a fingerpost, turn right in the meadow (some walkers cut the corner). Go through a kissing-gate where a Hangers Way marker reassures you that you are on the right path. Continue along the left-hand side of the next pasture. In the next corner, go left through a wooden gate and left on a tarmac lane, passing a pond and weeping willows of Vann Farm.

- 4 After 200m, just after a rise, turn right onto a signposted footpath, still on the HW. Immediately pass through a new metal kissing gate and along the left-hand side of a meadow. Go through another new metal kissing gate next to a large metal gate. Continue straight ahead between string fences and pastures with Noar Hill Hanger, spectacular in autumn, looming up on your left. At the other side, go through yet another new metal kissing gate to a lane. Turn right on the lane immediately crossing a footbridge beside a ford [wet winter 2014: here and later, the fords may be fast flowing!].

Decision point. If you want to take the next Link in the Hampshire Hangers Chain, turn immediately left through a metal kissing-gate on a footpath marked as the HW. Keep right to another kissing-gate and go up the centre of the pasture in the direction of the signpost to go through a kissing-gate visible on the edge of the woods ahead. Go up steeply through beeches and yews. At the top, by a fingerpost, turn left on a wide path, ignore a second fingerpost and go straight on to the right of a marker post with a yellow arrow. Now pick up the Selborne Common and Noar Hill walk at section 5. Otherwise ...

The Link from the Selborne Common and Noar Hill walk joins here.

- 5 The lane passes Alderney Stud and Riding Centre. Just before a thatched cottage, turn right on a wide path signposted as a byway by a sign for Rother House. This shady earthy track leads down in about 500m to another lane. Turn right on the lane. In 60m turn sharp left at a fingerpost (easily missed). This footpath goes over a bridge across a stream, the infant River Rother. Cross a stile and turn left to go over another stile, or through a metal gate, and along the right-hand side of a sloping pasture. Go over a (nettle-wrapped) stile close to the boundary fence and continue in the next pasture with the steep woods of Lane Copse on your right. You may meet some horned sheep here. After another open gate (making the stile and small wooden gate unnecessary), your path enters a rougher meadow, still with the steep woods on your right. You now enter a wood of poplars and beeches. Another stile takes you into a more open area and to a small wooden swing-gate, plus a crude stile (the wires are insulated!), with a large open meadow beyond.
- 6 Go through the gate, over a stile, avoid the path straight ahead and instead turn immediately right along the edge of the meadow. At the top, go through a large metal gate (lifting a chain) onto a wide path uphill through trees. Your path becomes sunken, then levels out a bit as you pass a wooden gate on your left. Finally, you pass brick sheds and come to a house, Mabbotts Farm (which offers B&B). Turn very sharp left here on a downhill path, almost doubling back, going past a metal gate.
- 7 Near the bottom, avoid a path that forks right and keep left on a narrower path. Your path crosses a stream and goes through a wooden swing-gate. Keep ahead now up the centre of a sloping bracken-filled meadow. At the far side, your path enters woods via another wooden swing-gate. Now keep straight on beside a wide fence on your right. Your path curves right past the remains of a bench, buried in undergrowth. You need to follow this narrow but fairly straight and thrilling path through the wood for some distance, with the steep Adams Wood on your right. On part of the way, there is a wire fence on your left. The fallen trees, a legacy from the storms of a few years back, have all been nicely cleared for you. You pass a small noticeboard showing a permissive path on your left: ignore it. Your path curves right at a wooden swing-gate and out into a meadow. As you go over the brow of the hill, you have terrific views ahead to the left of the South Downs.

- 8] Keep to the right-hand side of this heavenly green grassland and, at the far side go through two wooden gates. Stay on the right to go via a large metal gate into more woods. Your uphill path may seem like a stiff climb here at the end of the walk. At the top, you have a stile or a metal gate which takes you into another pasture. Turn left along the edge, and stay on the edge, soon passing through two more metal gates. (These gates may be a little stiff but you must be sure to close them because of the livestock.) [2023 The second gate has to be opened by rotating a metal plate upwards to slide the bolt across; the gate drops and has to be lifted to replace the bolt and plate.] Follow the path through a new stile, then round the left edge of the final pasture, to go over another stile beside a large wooden gate. Turn right on a tarmac lane.
- 9] In 50m, turn left onto a narrow footpath beside a metal gate, soon running by a sheep pasture (nicely cleared of undergrowth since this guide was first drafted). At the other side, you come out to a road. Cross straight over to a lane opposite, Pockocks Lane, signposted Village centre, Upper Green. This lane quickly takes you to the Hawkley Inn, a worthy final watering hole and worth the trip (taken by many, even from a distance away).

The Hawkley Inn is a great pull and you may find it crowded, as witness all the family cars and 4x4s parked lazily along the road. It announces itself as a "Free Hoose" and promises "a touch of theatre". The longest resident is the moose whose head has peered down from above the fireplace for nearly 30 years. Most remarkable is the number of beer and cider dispensers, twelve in all, so there is no point in listing the brews which vary according to the whim of the moose. Food is a matter of pride and the chefs will even come out to talk to you or prepare a special dish if you request it. They are very accommodating and have been known to serve late customers with a smile. An important matter: if you are a large group, they ask you to order and pay as a group if possible (ask for a discount then!). Booking is advisable: ring 01730 827205.

After possible refreshment, continue along Pockocks Lane soon reaching the Upper Green where the walk began.

Decision point. If you want to take the next Link in the Hampshire Hangers Chain, turn left at the first corner of the green on a tarmac drive for Cheesecombe Farm, marked as a cul-de-sac, and start the High Hampshire Hangers walk.

Getting there

By car: Hawkley is easy to reach from the A3 road. To get there from the direction of London or Guildford, follow the A3 about 5 miles=8 km beyond Liphook, as far as the big roundabout at a diagonal intersection with the B3006 road. Fork left at the roundabout signposted Liss. In 1 km=.6 mile, immediately after the Spread Eagle pub, turn right at a brown tourist sign and an old signpost for Hawkley. In 3 km=2 miles, at a 3-way signpost, turn left in the direction of Village Centre, Upper Green. At the green turn right and park near the church.
