Rivers, hills, views, famous pubs

In Brief

This walk takes you along the banks of the gentle Kent Water, then up into the hills for an enthralling and heavenly high meadow walk, then back beside the youthful Medway, calling in finally at some notable pubs. (To reserve a table at the Spotted Dog, ring 01892-870253. For the Bottle House, ring 01892-870306.)

There are few nettles on this walk but scratchy undergrowth can be uncomfortable for bare legs. Otherwise, any kind of attire is fine. There is usually some mud on the bridleway off Bassetts Lane and, taken with the distance, you will find boots are a comfort. Your dog can come too since nearly all the stiles have a dog gate.

The walk begins in the car park of the Kingdom Wholefoods Café clubhouse, postcode TN11 8DU, www.w3w.co/bulky.nozzle.blushes, in South Park Wood, just south of Penshurst, Kent (open again after the 2020 episode). This site is an adventure area, a centre for hiking and off-road cycling. It is marked on the OS map with a "P" symbol. Please make use of the café whose coffee and snacks make an excellent start to the day. The café clubhouse is open 10-4 daily but the car park is always open. It is at the top of a winding track. Look for a sign at the entrance, easily missed. See their website www.thiskingdom.co.uk.

On days of big special events, you may find the generous car park full, in which case you can park nearby on the roadside or in Fordcombe. Ashurst Station (postcode TN3 9TL) or the lay-by beyond the bridge at Ashurst are other starting points. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

If you have the latest Explorer map 147, the cover picture is a scene of Penshurst Off Road Cycling which used to run this South Park Wood site. It is still an outdoor centre but, as well as cycling, it hosts an adventure course, country walking, yoga, weddings, camp-fire cookery and various outdoor events. The clubhouse café is run by Basil Wholefoods and provides breakfast and hot and cold lunchtime snacks. Parking is free but please make use of the facilities and enjoy the really good coffee and healthy grub.

This wood, with the adjoining field, was owned in the mid-1800s by Viscount Henry Hardinge of Penshurst. Returning amongst popular adulation from his governor-generalship of India, he built a racecourse here to entertain and outdo his society friends and rivals.

Leg 1: South Park Wood to Kent Water 3 km=2 miles

- 1 Leave Kingdom by the way you came in: back down the winding track and left on the road. In 200m, go left on a signed footpath up some steps to a large crop field. Follow the footpath straight ahead across the centre, passing a large clump of trees in a hollow on your right. Immediately after passing the clump, turn right, keeping the clump on your right. (There is a tiny yellow marker pointing the way.) Where the edge of the clump curves away, keep dead straight on along a narrow path across the centre of the field, enjoying great high views across the Weald.
- 2 The path becomes clearer as you progress. Over on your right you can see one of the great houses of this area, Stonewall Park. When you reach the other side, go through a new metal gate. Follow the direction arrow on the gate to cross the field diagonally right, heading for a new kissing gate clearly visible in the far right-hand corner. Pass through the gate to reach a road. On your right, the low house is a gatehouse for Stonewall Park. Some winter rambles avoided imminent mud by staying on the road, turning left at a T-junction. Don't cross the road but turn immediately left over a stile and go along the left-hand side of a meadow. In the far corner, go through a temporary metal gate and continue through a similar metal gate in the next meadow and thence into the next meadow. At the end of this last meadow, veer right, avoiding a stile over on your left, and go through a metal gate and over a stile to a road. Turn left on the road, going past Finches on your left.

- 3 In 350m, at a road junction, turn right and right again on a quiet lane, signposted Bassetts, Cowden. In 250m fork left under wires, at a new signpost [Aug 2021: gone], and onto a bridleway. (This is the first of several sections where mud might be a problem. You will need to skirt it on either side.) You pass a pond on your right and enter woodland. Nearly 500m from the start, the bridleway curves right at the edge of the hill with views south where the trees allow. In another 300m, the bridleway suddenly bends left downhill. (A farm gate straight ahead gives you a good photo-opportunity first.) The path goes through a broken wooden gate and down to a tarmac drive. Turn left on the drive and keep ahead on a tarmac lane coming from the left. In 70m, turn left at a footpath sign by a white fence on a path leading across the sheep pasture with the Kent Water flowing beside you on the right.

Leg 2: Kent Water to Ashurst 3 km=2 miles

The Kent Water rises from springs somewhere west of here and meanders eastwards until it flows into the Medway. It forms the boundary between Kent and East Sussex.

- 1 You will be following the Sussex Border Path, off and on, for about 4 km. Follow the stream along the right-hand edge of the field and, at the far end, go over a bridge with railings and keep to the right alongside a golf green. Go through a metal kissing-gate and straight across another grassy meadow. The path takes you under power lines and over a bridge (with a stepover each side) across a minor stream to reach the edge of a crop field. Turn right along the edge of the field and, in 60m, just before the corner, turn right over the Kent Water using a hidden concrete bridge. You are now in East Sussex for a short section. Keep ahead up the slope of the pasture, past an oak on your right, aiming just to the left of a low corrugated barn belonging to some farm buildings up ahead. At the far side of the field join a dirt track, as directed by a signpost. You pass the farm house and cow pens on your right, with more buildings on your left. Willetts Farm is a busy dairy farm, far from the chocolate box image, with heaps of machinery and productive herds Willetts were once famous for their ice cream, hopefully to be revived one day. Walk between farm buildings, continue for 70m, then veer left along a faint currently unsigned path, part of Sussex Border Path. This path is tricky to find at first but it will become better defined and clearer after about 100m. If you miss this turn and reach a bridge over the railway you have gone 200m too far!

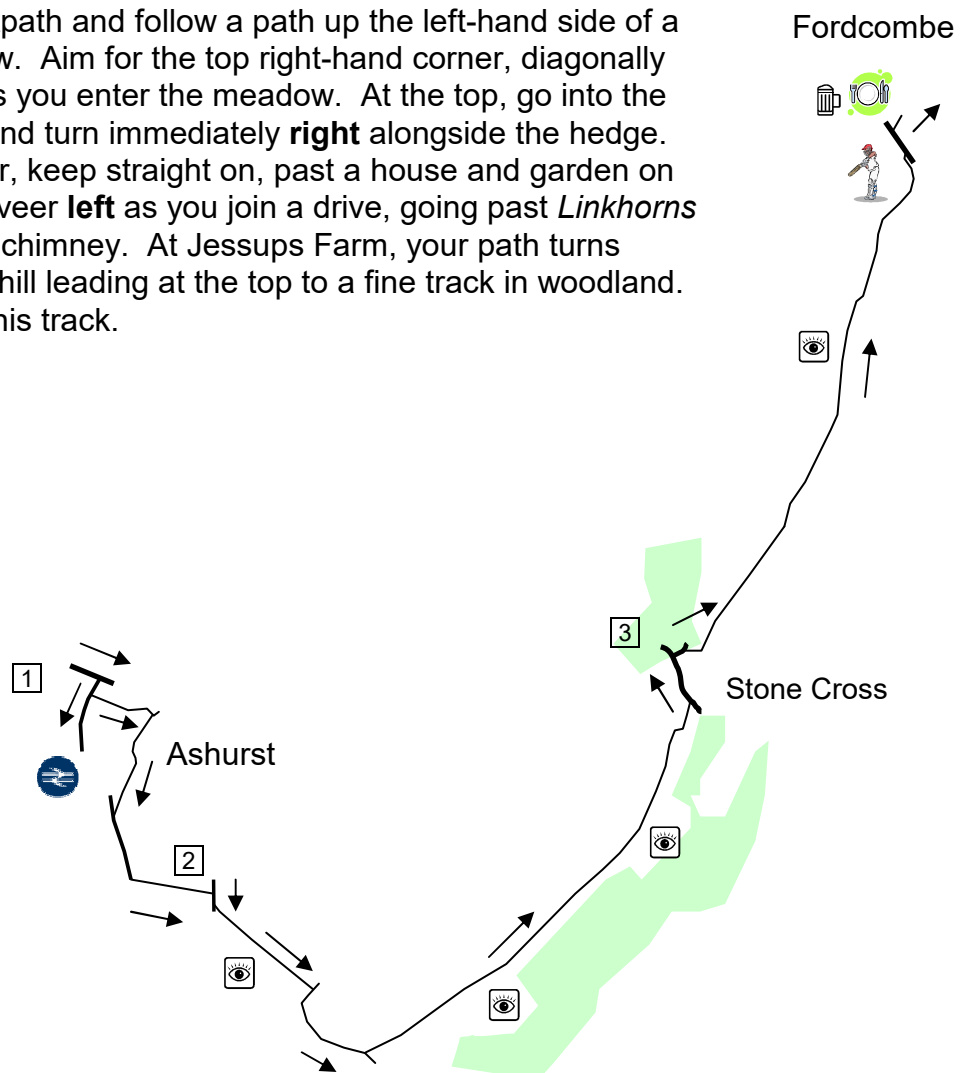

- 2 Keep to the left side of this long pasture. Your route passes a small pond on your right and sunken banks on your left. At least one of the pastures may contain dairy cattle, all well used to people and easy to bypass. At the far side, the meadow narrows with woodland on your right while, on your left, the young River Medway appears. There is now a roped fence across the way: your easiest route is right for 30m, through a gap in the fence, and left down to the river, turning right at a muddy willow grove just before some wartime pillboxes. You enter another long meadow with a railway arch visible on your right. In the far corner, go through a somewhat crude gate made out of an old wooden pallet. Continue through some woodland, under a railway bridge beside the stream. Keep along the left-hand side of the next meadow and finally go over a stile to the main A264 road. Turn left on the road and walk under the railway bridge into Ashhurst village.

Ashurst was once a site of pilgrimage when, some time in the 1300s, a local carpenter created a carving that the priest proclaimed to be miraculous. For several centuries, people would bequeath their jewellery to the carving and the village became quite prosperous. Whether it was carved from ash wood is not known.

Leg 3: Ashurst to Fordcombe 4 km=2½ miles

- 1 Ignore a residential road and turn right on Station Road, signposted Ashurst Station. In 40m, turn left over a stile on a signposted footpath and follow a path up the left-hand side of a flowery meadow. Aim for the top right-hand corner, diagonally opposite you as you enter the meadow. At the top, go into the next meadow and turn immediately right alongside the hedge. In the far corner, keep straight on, past a house and garden on your right, and veer left as you join a drive, going past Linkhorns with its leaning chimney. At Jessups Farm, your path turns abruptly left uphill leading at the top to a fine track in woodland. Turn right on this track.

Fordcombe owes its prosperity to the Chafford Mill, just down the hill on the Medway, which produced some of the finest paper from which, in the 1800s, Bank of England notes and postage stamps were made. The local pub, the Chafford Arms, serves several of the local brews (including Larkins) together with lunch and has a large garden with views over the Medway valley. The pub also serves coffee and fish and chips. The pub sign illustrates the "ford" in the village name.

Leg 4: Fordcombe to the Medway Bridge 3 km=2 miles

1 See map overleaf. Go down the main road passing the village sign, the school and a terrace of stone houses and, immediately after, turn right on a footpath. However, for refreshment, you may first like to make a short diversion down the road to the "Chafford Arms", a big village pub with a lovely garden and views over the countryside. Follow the wide grassy path and, on entering a crop field, take a well-walked path across the centre, heading for a chain stile in the distant corner. (In case this field is overplanted and a little tiresome to cross, note that this is the only one on your route. In Nov 2023 walkers had to follow a tractor path and a row of bushes to reach the corner.) At the other side, go through the chain stile and down the left-hand side of a meadow. Penshurst Place is visible about 2½ km away just to the right (see the other walk in this series Chiddingstone, Penshurst: a Hundred Oasts and Two Castles). At the bottom of the meadow, do not go through the chain stile ahead but turn left through a kissing-gate and right along the right-hand edge of the adjoining field. At the bottom, go ahead into a bluebell wood. After 80m keep left, continuing on the main path through the middle of the wood, ignoring a narrower, and overgrown, path on the right. Your path comes out into a field and goes along the top edge, with Spring Hill Oast dominating the view ahead. At the corner, turn right down the gone-wild edge of the field, going over a new wooden bridge-with-handrail at the bottom, to meet a broad path.

- 2 Turn right on the broad path, going between fields, with a ditch on your right. The path bends left and right over a bridge with the Medway now close by on your left. (The Private signs only apply to anglers!) Keep left in this pasture, keeping close to the riverside. Your path passes very close to the Medway, along the left-hand side of a rather muddy meadow. You have the choice of following the river bank or keeping to the footpath which bypasses the meanderings of the river on your left by going straight ahead at an angle across the grass. You pass under low- and high-tension wires, then over a stile and a plank bridge to continue beside the river. Go over a bridge and through a chain stile into the next meadow, followed by another which, in season, is full of summer flowers. You next meet a 3-plank bridge and a chain stile leading into a large meadow. Continue along the river bank and after bearing slightly left with the path, cross another plank bridge, and then in 150m, where a path comes in from the right, go left over a substantial bridge across the Medway, with a sign that you are entering the Penshurst estate.

Leg 5: Medway Bridge to South Park Wood 3 km=2 miles

- 1 Keep ahead on a path that leads away from the river, slightly right, across the meadow. Keep to the left-hand side, heading for a large metal gate. Go through the adjoining small metal gate, avoiding a footpath to the right, and continue ahead on a wide bridleway between hedges. You pass a pond on your left and the bridleway veers left towards the buildings of

- 2 Approach the main road carefully, turn left on it for 30m and then go right up steps on a signposted footpath. Go over a stile into a sloping meadow. Your path runs level, veers right uphill and goes steeply up a slope. Continue up the steepest part (infested with Himalayan balsam: take care not to pick up any seeds on your shoes!), finally going through a new metal gate to reach a road. Turn right on the road to reach the Spotted Dog.

The “Spotted Dog” is one of the celebrated pubs of West Kent, housed in a 15th-century white clapboard building which started life as several cottages. There is a large terrace at the front and a smaller one at the back which affords views across the Medway valley. The menu qualifies it as a gastropub and reviews are very good. Real ales available are Larkins, Harveys plus one or two guests, such as Doom Bar and Black Cat. These can be enjoyed on the long comfortable settees, provided you mind your head on the beams. Whatever they may say, however, the “Spotted Dog” is a bit snooty about walkers who are, at the threshold, asked to leave their boots outside. The “Spotted Dog” is open from 11.30 till the evening, closed on Mondays at 3pm, except occasionally on bank holidays. Food is available whenever the pub is open.

- 3 After possible refreshment, continue along the lane, going past the famous double sign pointing to two pubs. Ignore the right turn here and continue on the road. In 50m, avoid a road on the left (Nunnery Lane) and stay on the major road, now called Coldharbour Road. In 350m, you come to the Bottle House.

The “Bottle House” is another ancient inn, an equal rival to the “Spotted Dog”, with a pleasant terrace, a good menu and some local ales. It was built in 1492, the year that Columbus sailed. It was one or two farm cottages until 1773 when it was first licensed. Parts of it were a baker, a shop, a farrier and a cobbler, later there was a skittle alley, a chapel with graves and their attendant ghosts who still haunt the area. The current layout dates from 1938 when the two cottages were joined again. The name “Bottle House” derives from the large number of bottles that were found in the rubble.

- 4 Turn right just before the Bottle House going through the pub’s car park and going along the drive for Horns Lodge, through a small wooden gate beside their main gate. Just before a Private sign attached to a fence, turn left as indicated through a wooden gate on a path between fences. The path bends right, taking you left in 150m through a gate into a field. Turn right in the field (the signpost is misleading), alongside the hedge of a garden on your right. At the corner of its fence, keep straight on across the field to a large clump of trees (familiar if you began the walk at Kingdom). If you did not begin the walk at the Kingdom Clubhouse, turn left just before the clump, by a tiny yellow arrow, and where the edge of the clump curves away, keep dead straight on along a narrow path across the centre of the field continuing the walk from section 2 of Leg 1. At the end of the field, continue ahead, going down steps to Grove Road, retracing your outward journey, turning right on the road, right on the entrance drive, back to Kingdom where the walk began. (There is an alternative unofficial short cut back to the Kingdom club house and car park by turning right off the path soon after leaving the field onto a winding track through ferns to the adventure / exercise area. These short cuts tend to change over time.)

Getting there

By car: if coming from the London area, west side, one attractive way is from the B2026, Kent Hatch Road; about 2½ miles south of Edenbridge turn left to go through Markbeeche; keep right at Chiddingstone Hoath, and in ¾ mile turn left, signposted Penshurst, into Grove Road. Look for a rough track on your right in less than 1 mile, with a sign Kingdom Wholefoods Café. The car park is at the top of the winding track where you will see the large two-story clubhouse. If you decide to go through Penshurst (either from Tonbridge or Tunbridge Wells, on the Penshurst Road, or from the north on the B2176), go south on the B2188, signposted Fordcombe, and in about ½ mile, turn right on Grove Road, signposted Chiddingstone, Edenbridge; the car park is on the left in just over ½ mile.

By train: start the walk at Ashurst station.
